THE STRATFORD WAY 1973-'74

DEDICATION

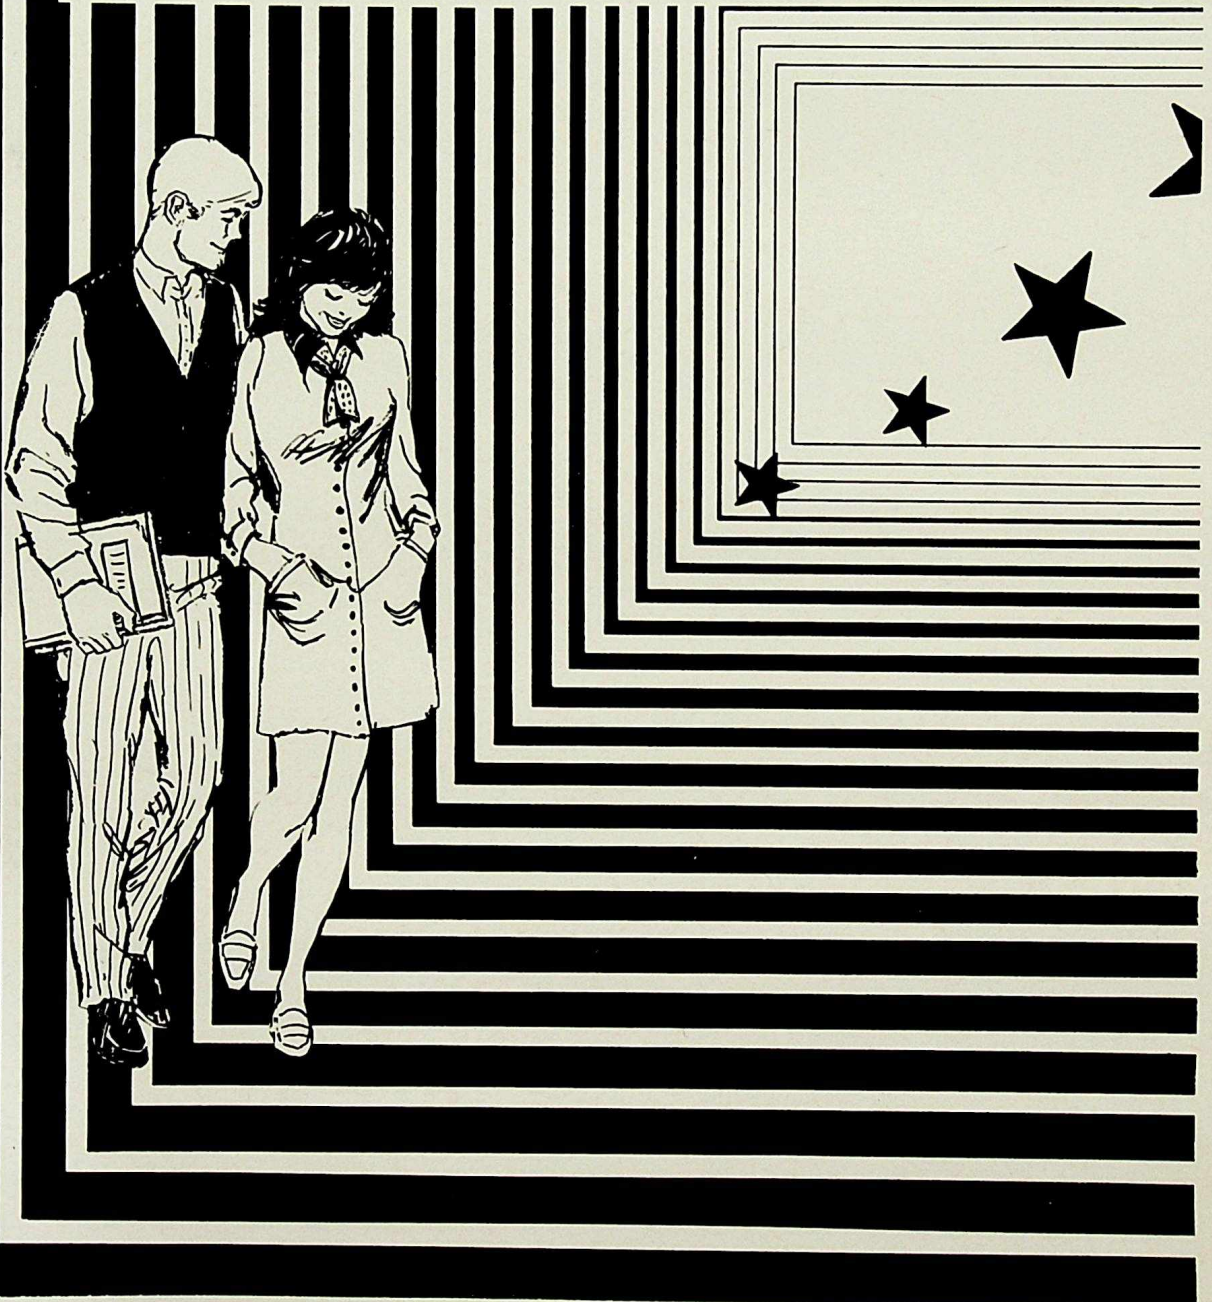

This edition of the Stratford Junior High School Yearbook is dedicated to the Youth of Today.

Progress in a variety of fields has been the keynote of the Twentieth Century. In particular, there have been advances in medicine, biochemistry, astronomy, space, and atomic research. Nevertheless, there are many conflicts still to be resolved. The initiative for solving these problems must come from our generation. We, the youth of this century, can, in our own way, contribute to mankind's continued progress by recognizing our responsibilities to our homes, our country, and our world. Through recognition of these responsibilities, continued progress is inevitable.

In the words of William Shakespeare:

"This above all: to thine own self be true,
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man."

- Lorraine Lazaruk

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

The outlook for youth today is beset by uncertainty and formidable challenges. Young people find society at a critical uneasy point in its history. They are disturbed by the prospects of a dehumanized technological culture. They are tired of conflicts and seek warm friendly human relationships. They want to know how we can enjoy the advantages of a rapidly developing technology without destroying the human values we cherish.

Whatever criticisms may be made of some features of life in Canada today it is beyond doubt that we have high ideals, high ethical principles and a high standard of living. We believe in law and order and justice, certainly necessary principles as we prepare to become independent members of society. Personal confusion is sometimes caused by the fact that young people take so great a personal interest in what is happening everywhere. Young people are bombarded with people's opinions on instincts, reflexes, behavior, sex, traffic problems, and so on. A real sense of worth can only develop when you find a purpose in life fitted to your intellect and skill. Surely some sober judgement is necessary as youth moves from a sheltered society to life on his own. The joy of living is doing things that show some wholesome results. There are several steps in this process of making good judgements. First, you collect the facts from observation and experience. Secondly, you must consider and appraise them. Then you explain the facts by an hypothesis. Finally, you test the hypothesis. This method leaves no room for jumping to conclusions on the basis of hearsay and thus logical decisions may then be made.

Our youth today become the leaders of tomorrow, the judges, the scientists, the educators. On their efforts, on their judgements, on their deeds, stands civilization.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

When we first entered Stratford, it was a strange, new world. It was very different from the elementary schools that we had attended earlier. Stratford presented us with new challenges, new friends, new teachers, and a wider variety of subjects.

Stratford is no longer strange to us. Over the past three years we have grown to know most of our fellow students and made many new friends. We met our many challenges head-on and even tried to get along with the teachers.

You have to realize that a teacher's job is not an easy one. Teachers can please some of the students some of the time, but they can't please all of the students all of the time. I think that Stratford has an excellent teaching staff and find that they work hard to please most of the students most of the time.

I have found my job as President hard, yet rewarding. I have tried diligently to fulfill my obligations as President and I hope that I have satisfied the students.

As the year comes to an end, we, the graduates, prepare to move on to new horizons and to meet new challenges. Looking back on the past three years, we realize what fun we have had. I sincerely hope that the new students who take our places have as much fun as we have had.

Last of all, I hope that future students realize Stratford's high standards as a school and keep them high, so that we can say with pride -

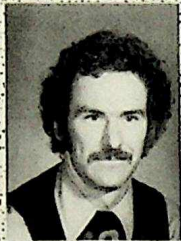

STRATFORD!
